Movie Video & Screen Awards

In 2006 the concept for a screen awards were put in motion. The purpose was to fill the void that existed by providing a credible platform to recognise the talents and achievements of people of colour within the film and television industry. Initially entitled the Music Video and Screen Awards, otherwise known as "MVSA" (pn:MVISA's) This event was the culmination of the week long Birmingham Black International Film Festival.

In 2011 as part of a review of the future strategic direction of the MVISA's the word "music" was replaced with "movie" and our star studded awards ceremony was from then on known as the Movie Video and Screen Awards (The MVISAs). In 2013 we introduced our new award, exclusively made in Birmingham's famous Jewellery Quarters by some of the finest craftsmen in the country.

The award was designed by MVISA Founder and Director, Dean Alexander. The face of the awards was crafted by Simon Hayes a skilled jeweller with over 20 years experience and manufactured in the Jewellery Quarters. The design conceptualises the most prominent symbols of the industry and fuses them together to create a really striking feature. The award has a brass structure forged from 3 different metal alloys and is plated in 18ct gold with a needle brushed finish. The androgynous face of the award is taken from the two faces of the symbolic theatrical masks. Its non-racial features reflect the diversity and inclusive nature of the awards ceremony, while the 35mm film strip is proportionally accurate down to the small squares on the strip. The MVISA award is now a prized and coveted symbol of excellence for award winners, the craftsmanship of Birmingham and of course an endorsement of credibility for the Movie Video & Screen Awards and the Black International Film Festival.
